Matt Woodburn is at it again!

Matt Woodburn has long been a supplier of high quality blankets for the troops. From time to time he has offered his products and ridiculously low prices.

Now is your chance to get in on the insanity once more. Matt has Julius Jones blankets (Discounted version only) on sale for the low sum of $75 plus $10 for shipping. Your editor recently purchased one of these blankets for his own collection of things he really has no need for. I will tell you that you will not find a finer deal on a quality blanket anywhere. The only way to get one of these fine blankets any cheaper is to rob the recently departed on the field of battle.

Other News

Mark your calendars for yet another potential event in the coming months.

May 18-20, 2007, NPS Spotsylvania Living History, Fredericksburg/Spotsylvania National Military Park, Virginia -
Sponsored by the Columbia Rifles, this will be a living history event similar to A2003 and Chancellorsville-Wilderness 2004 with the NPS, for the Spotsylvania battlefield. Scenarios/depictions may include activities at Laurel Hill/Spindle's Field, Upton's Trail and the attack upon Doles's Salient, and the Second Corps's May 12, 1864 attack at the Mule Shoe, and the 49th New York (Sixth Corps) at the Bloody Angle. No one in blue wool has been at Spotsylvania since 1864. Contact: Jeff Johannes of the Columbia Rifles, (540) 752-0691, jjspanzer@hotmail.com.
